Evaluating Treatment Environments Evaluating Treatment Environments:

Evaluating Treatment Environments Rudolf H. Moos, 2018-01-18 Evaluating Treatment Environments describes how to assess the quality of psychiatric and substance abuse programs and how to use that information to monitor and improve these programs Its aim is to identify environments that promote opportunities for personal growth simultaneously enhancing both physical and psychological well being Although treatment programs are diverse Moos asserts that a common conceptual framework can be used to evaluate them and more emphasis should be placed on the process of matching personal and program factors and on the connections between such matches and patients outcomes The book is divided into three main parts Part I focuses on hospital programs using a sample of 160 programs throughout the United States Part II evaluates community programs Moos describes how to monitor and improve these programs and assesses program implementation Part III considers treatment environments examining factors that shape the treatment environment patients satisfaction with and participation in program activities patients adaptation and community living skills and patient program congruence and the influence of treatment environments on patients with different levels of impairment It also highlights the importance of the health care workplace and its impact on staff and the treatment environment Treatment programs vary substantially in their policies and services especially in what they expect of clients rules about clients daily life choices and to what extent clients must be governed by the program and whether or not the programs provide health and treatment services Comparison studies are becoming more important as clients move more quickly from acute in patient to community residential care Moos stresses the need to pay special attention to how programs and services affect clients when conducting evaluations Evaluating Treatment Environments will be a necessary addition to the libraries of mental health service professionals as well as sociologists psychiatrists psychologists and social workers Evaluating Treatment

Health, Program Evaluation, and Demography David J. Mangan, Warren A. Peterson, Evaluating Mental Health Practice (Psychology Revivals) Derek Milne, 2015-03-27 With the emphasis in the 1980s on effectiveness and efficiency in health services evaluation of practice was increasingly important This was particularly true of mental health where many practices were poorly evaluated and therefore might have been of questionable validity Originally published in 1987 this book reviews the state of evaluative research of mental health programmes at the time showing how practices can be evaluated and hence improved A multidisciplinary group of authors covering psychiatry clinical psychology psychiatric nursing social work and other therapies describe previous studies and applications in each discipline before detailing a case study of their own evaluative work The book will still have something to offer all professionals concerned with improving the quality of their work in the mental health area Drug Abuse Treatment Evaluation National Institute on Drug Abuse, 1984 Evaluating Social Work Effectiveness Cheetham, Juliet, Fuller, Roger, McIvor, Gill, 1992-10-01 Social work has an impact on large numbers of citizens through its services for children and families elderly people those with mental or physical health problems and offenders It also provokes much criticism its effectiveness is questioned and there are increasing demands for this to be demonstrated This text discusses how this task may be tackled and explores possibilities for evaluative research in contexts which are often not considered feasible for such enquiry Paying particular attention to the diverse and complex functions of social work the book reviews the implications for choosing and adapting research methodologies emphasizes the importance of identifying the process of social work as well as its outcomes and distinguishes between the identification of effectiveness and its evaluation It also describes the various means of dissemination which are necessary if research is to influence policy and practice The book which gives many examples of research in action draws on evaluative research in Britain and the US and also on the experience of the Social Work Research Centre It has been written for researchers managers practitioners and students with responsibilities to undertake or to understand the systematic evaluation of social work DHHS Publication No. (ADM)., 1985 A Culture of Enquiry Nick Manning, Diana Menzies, Jan Lees, 2003-09-15 This volume collects a wide range of papers discussing all aspects of Therapeutic Community TC research An invaluable resource for anyone involved in the field it considers questions of which methods are most appropriate in the TC environment how research studies affect this as well as practical and ethical questions Toward a New Definition of Health P. I. Ahmed, 2012-12-06 It is generally recognized today that the United States has a need to contribute to the improvement of health throughout the world The need stems from the interrelationships that exist between the health of Americans and the health status of the rest of the people on Spaceship Earth Disease does not respect national boundaries and the frequency of travel and trade between countries increases each year It further relates to the opportunities found in international settings to help solve health problems more effectively and efficiently This includes the unique human resources that are found throughout the world as well as certain natural ecological conditions that cannot be duplicated in the United States The United States also has a responsibility to contribute to improved health status Our tradition of humanitarianism alone supports such a responsibility but our comparative wealth of technical and financial resources dictates a requirement to participate Modern political realities define relationships between developed and developing countries that will not allow us to isolate ourselves from the compelling health needs of a majority of the world's population Final Environmental Impact Statement for Managing Competing and Unwanted Vegetation ,1988

Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1990 Health and the Environment Miscellaneous United States. Congress. House. Committee on Energy and Commerce. Subcommittee on Health and the Environment, 1981 Building Evaluation Wolfgang F.E. Preiser, 1989-09-30 Based on the Symposium on Advances in Building Evaluation Knowledge methods and Applications held as part of the Tenth Biannual Conference of the International Association for the Study of People and Their Physical Surroundings July 5 8 1988 in Delft The Netherlands Administration in Mental Health ,1983 Drug programs in correctional institutions Roger Craig Smith, 1977 Evaluating Treatment Environments Rudolf H. Moos, 1974 Final Environmental Impact Statement for the Suppression of the Southern Pine Beetle ,1987 The Effectiveness of Methadone Maintenance Treatment John C. Ball, Alan Ross, 2012-12-06 Legislators journalists and concerned citizens in general when considering what to do about the plague of heroin addiction in large cities ask an obvious question Is methadone treatment effective This question is a critical one since maintenance with methadone is at present the only practical alternative to leaving tens of thousands in New York City hundreds of thousands of untreated addicts on the streets Other treatments although effective for limited groups could not conceivably be expanded to stop heroin use in as much as 10% of the addicted population The present study sponsored by the National Institute on Drug Abuse was undertaken to provide an authoritative answer to this question Under the direction of a distinguished expert the evaluation team made an intensive examination of techniques and outcomes in six different methadone programs located in New York Philadelphia and Baltimore and followed this by two years of data analysis and literature review The present report is the product of this work The primary conclusion namely that methadone treatment is substantially effective in reducing heroin use and associated criminal behavior is consistent with the findings of several previous independent evaluations Assessment in Psychiatric and Mental Health Nursing Philip J. Barker, 2004 This bestseller has been updated to reflect new concepts and ideas The assessment of mental health problems is vital to the successful planning and treatment for people suffering from them This book provides a step by step guide of how to conduct this assessment giving student nurses a humanistic perspective on the subject New material in this second edition includes person centered assessment and care planning and culture and culturally appropriate assessment and care planning
