UNFPA Humanitarian Cash & Voucher Assistance (CVA): CVA Overview

Why has humanitarian CVA become so widely used?

CVA can support access to GBV and SRH services, and contribute to the safety, dignity and resilience of women and girls in humanitarian contexts. It can offer discretion and flexibility compared to in-kind assistance. A number of recent studies have shown the potential for CVA to strengthen protection outcomes for women and girls, such as renting safe housing or meeting basic needs, which reduces the likelihood of risky coping strategies such as transactional sex or forced marriage. CVA has also been shown to demonstrate cost-effectiveness with respect to in-kind assistance, which is important in order to make the best use of limited humanitarian resources.

Key Message: CVA can support access to GBV and SRH services, and contribute to the safety, dignity and resilience of women and girls in humanitarian contexts.

What are the additional steps that CVA requires within the programme cycle?

- Questions about CVA during consultations with women and girls, regarding preferences, safety and market access
- Market analysis to determine if intended items or services are available, of good quality and safely accessible in local market(s)
- Protection/GBV Risk and Mitigation Analysis for CVA
- Financial Service Provider assessment to determine if financial or mobile companies can manage the intended caseload
- Post-distribution monitoring of CVA
- Data protection protocols particularly when working with the private sector for cash delivery, and particularly if GBV survivors/persons at risk of GBV will be included in beneficiary lists
