

1. Principle of Flag/Leaky Control

The flag/leaky is controlled by the construction light switch which is used to control the operation of the flag/leaky relay. When the light switch is turned to the clockwise (leaky) position, the electric power from the line (L) is supplied to the flag/leaky control via the switch (S). When the flag/leaky switch is in the first flag/leaky position, the L-terminal of the flag/leaky switch is immediately connected to the L-terminal to activate the first flag/leaky relay engaged and then light up the first flag/leaky. When the flag/leaky switch is in the next flag/leaky position, all terminals (L, N, PE and PE) of the flag/leaky switch turn on, and the next flag/leaky relay also engages. In this case, the first and next flag/leaky light on the same time. For the principle of the flag/leaky control is just to turn on the clockwise (leaky) position (leaky) terminals from the first flag/leaky, and the next flag/leaky can be turned on only after the first flag/leaky turns on (this is implemented using the switch).
